

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS: CITL Undergraduate Fellows Program

The Center for Innovations in Teaching and Learning invites applications from advanced undergraduates interested in joining the third cohort of the CITL Undergraduate Fellows Program in the 2020-2021 academic year.

The program encourages students who will be sophomores, juniors or seniors in Fall of 2020 to join a vibrant community of inquiry and practice focused on peer-to-peer academic stewardship for the unique challenges and opportunities of learning in our unprecedented time. Peer stewardship empowers students to meet their academic goals through learning from one another, placing student experts and their insights at the center of support for navigating and nurturing academic life at UCSC and beyond.

As part of the CITL mission, fellows will help to foster community, access, and deep learning through the insights and innovations of students helping students.

We seek applicants who will continue to build a rich network of undergraduate peer learning experts, and who can assist their colleagues in becoming outstanding learners, based on research and on their own experiences. We invite student leaders and leaders-to-be from across departments and backgrounds to engage in year-long fellowship and collaborative exploration of the principles and support of student learning.

Fellows' activities with the program include a year-long course on the Theory and Practice of Stewardship for Learning (2 units each in the Fall, Winter, and Spring); reading and reflection on cutting-edge learning science; the creation and implementation of projects to enhance learning in their respective communities; and the chance to build a truly collaborative and supportive community of leaders and learners. Fellows will share insights, research, and direction during monthly seminar meetings, and their contributions will continue to advance the legacy of student-to-student programming for undergraduate learning expertise at UCSC.

Please apply through Canvas at <https://canvas.ucsc.edu/enroll/LLCLEM> or contact the Fellows' Program at citluf@ucsc.edu. Review of applications will be rolling.